

W. W. JOHNSON DIES.

Native of Virginia Here Fifty Years—In Realty Business.

William W. Johnson, who had been engaged in the real estate business here, died Wednesday afternoon at his home, 124 G street northwest, in his sixty-fifth year.

Mr. Johnson was a native of Virginia, but had resided here for more than fifty years. He was engaged in the real estate business in this city and Dickinson, Md., for many years. He entered the real estate business about eight years ago at 1404 G street.

His wife, Mrs. Victoria Johnson; three children, Mrs. David V. McCoy of this city, Mrs. Bessie Butts of Rockville, Md., and Joseph W. Johnson of this city, survive him.

Funeral services were held this afternoon at Metropolitan Memorial M. E. Church.

BAN BUSINESS PLACES.

Columbia Road Section to Remain Residential Zone.

The west side of Columbia road between Baltimore street and Minnesota place will remain residential, by order of the zoning commission. Petition was made to the commission to change that area to first commercial, but strenuous protest against such a change was raised.

EDSON HEADS CHARITIES.

Re-Elected by District Board—New Members Take Office.

John Joy Edson was re-elected president of the District board of charities at an organization meeting in the District building yesterday. Dr. George M. Kober again was named vice president and George S. Wilson was re-elected secretary.

The new members who took office yesterday are William T. Callender, Mrs. Whitman Cross and Rev. William J. Kerby. This is the first time for several months that a quorum has existed.

The board has before it a number of applications for the position of assistant superintendent of the District workhouse at Occoquan, Va., but will make a tour of inspection of the institution before recommending a candidate to the Commissioners.

TALKS OF CHANGE FOR STUDY IN ROME

Speaker Before Federation of Arts Commends American Academy There.

An appeal to members of the American Federation of Arts, twelfth annual convention of which closed today here, to spread the knowledge of the opportunity offered ambitious youth by the American Academy in Rome was voiced by Charles D. Norton, one of its trustees, at the morning session at the Corcoran Gallery of Art.

"The academy belongs to every American and every boy ought to realize that the prize of a three-year stay in Rome, with all that it implies in the way of study and atmosphere, is open for his winning," said Mr. Norton, whose remarks were supplemented by William A. Boring, treasurer of the academy and professor of architecture in its faculty.

School for Disabled Soldiers.

The School of Illustration and Commercial Art for Disabled Soldiers, characterized by the president of the federation as "a noble enterprise," was described by W. A. Rogers, its director, as an association of artists organized three days after the declaration of war to assist in war poster designing, was opened in New York in the fall of last January, and is doing constructive patriotic education work on behalf of disabled soldiers.

Other talks given this morning, some of them illustrated, were: "The Art Education We Need," by Loyd Winslow, University of the State of New York; "The Tiffany Foundation," by Stanley Lott, director of the Peterboro (N. H.) Colony; "Mrs. Edward McDowell, widow of the famous composer and now director of the colony; and "Educational Work of an Art Museum," Rossier Howard of the Cleveland Museum.

Afternoon Session.

The Art Museum was the general topic for the afternoon session, at which Thomas Whitney Surette, director of the Cleveland Art Museum, gave an illustrated talk on the methods of appreciation of art museum problems.

Resolutions to be reported at 3 o'clock by the committee on resolutions were largely of sympathy over the loss of members and of thanks for courtesies shown the convention. Among the former members so honored were Henson and his family, Henry Kirke Porter and his family, W. Ames.

Delegates thanked for hospitality to the convention were the President and Mrs. Harding, the regents of the Smithsonian Institution, its secretary, Dr. Watson, and Dr. Holmes, curator of the National Gallery; Herbert Putnam, librarian of Congress; and Prof. Duncan Phillips and the board of trustees of the Corcoran Gallery.

Election of officers will be the final item of business, after which, at 4:30 o'clock, the delegates will visit the Phillips Memorial Gallery at 1600 21st street northwest, a dinner at Rauscher's tonight will conclude the convention, which has been featured throughout by a large and enthusiastic attendance.
